SAKENET AUSTRALIA

Taka

We are the only importer/distributor, in Australia, that specialises in 純米熟成燗酒 / 'Junmai Jukusei Kan-zaké'.

'Junmai Jukusei Kan-zaké' is one of the styles of traditional Japanese Saké.

純米 / Junmai = pure rice,
熟成 / Jukusei = maturation
燗酒 / Kan-zaké = heated Saké

純米酒 / 'Junmai-shu' had disappeared in 1940's due to shortage of the ingredient rice under the war. At the same time, many traditional Saké making techniques were lost.

A half century later, during 1990's and early 2010's, some premium Sakés including aromatic 'Ginjo' and fresh 'Nama Genshu' became popular. But the traditional 'Junmai-shu' was still rare. So some people used the word 'Junmai-shu' as Saké made with traditional recipes and techniques.

Now wine-like or whisky-like Saké is becoming popular and mainstream of the modern Saké both in and out of Japan. Many of them are 'Junmai-shu', and suitable or preferred to be consumed cold and with wine glasses.

However, some makers have continued to produce 'Junmai Jukusei Kan-zaké' since 1980's when many people thought 'Junmai-shu' was old school. The number of 'Junmai Jukusei Kan-zaké' makers is still small, but it is getting bigger and many consumers are starting to support them now.

We have been supporting and promoting 'Junmai Jukusei Kan-zaké' and its culture with those makers, shops, restaurants and consumers in Japan, since before Sakenet Australia was established in 2008.
